☐ the entire international application.

☒ claims Nos. 13-22.

because:

☐ the description, claims or drawings (indicate particular elements below) or said claims Nos. are so unclear that no meaningful opinion could be formed (specify):

☐ the claims, or said claims Nos. are so inadequately supported by the description that no meaningful opinion could be formed.

☒ no international search report has been established for the said claims Nos. 13-22.

2. A meaningful international preliminary examination cannot be carried out due to the failure of the nucleotide and/or amino acid sequence listing to comply with the standard provided for in Annex C of the Administrative Instructions:

☐ the written form has not been furnished or does not comply with the standard.

☐ the computer readable form has not been furnished or does not comply with the standard.

Re Item III

Non-establishment of opinion with regard to novelty, inventive step and industrial applicability

No international preliminary examination will be carried out in respect to the subject-matter of claims 13 to 22, which is not covered by the search report (Rule 66.1(e) PCT). However, the scope of claims 13 to 22 can be considered as identical to the subject-matter of claims 23 to 35.

Re Item V

Reasoned statement under Article 35(2) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

Reference is made to the following documents:

- D1: WO 99 13862 A (COLUMBIA LABORATORIES, INC.) 25 March 1999 (1999- 03-25) cited in the application
- D2: DATABASE BIOSIS [Online] BIOSCIENCES INFORMATION SERVICE, PHILADELPHIA, PA, US; 1991 LANG E K: 'organic vs. functional obstruction of the fallopian tubes differentiation with prostaglandin antagonist-mediated and beta-2-agonist-mediated hysterosalpingography and selective ostial salpingography' Database accession no. prev199192058871 XP002168612 & AJR (AMERICAN JOURNAL OF ROENTGENOLOGY), vol. 157, no. 1, 1991, pages 77-80.

- D1 describes a pharmaceutical composition comprising a beta-adrenergic agonist like terbutaline and a bioadhesive carrier like polycarbophil effective in dysmenorrhea or premature labour, after local administration in order to avoid adverse side-effects.
- D2 discloses the efficacy of the beta-adrenergic agonist terbutaline in patients with infertility disorders.

V.1 Claims 1 to 12: Novelty

The subject-matter of claims 1 to 12 is not novel in the sense of Article 33(2)

PCT over the teaching of prior art document D1. A pharmaceutical composition identical to the present claims and its therapeutic application, i.e. dysmenorrhea or premature labour, have already been disclosed in D1 (page 12 Table 1). Moreover, document D2 is also depriving the subject-matter of claim 6 from novelty.

V.2 Claims 23 to 35: Novelty - Inventive step

V.2.1 The subject-matter of independent claim 23 is new in the sense of Article 33(2) PCT over the teaching of the prior art documents. The said claim seeks protection for a new medical indication of a known pharmaceutical composition, i.e. endometriosis.

The subject-matter of claim 23 can be considered as involving an inventive step in the sense of Article 33(3) PCT for the following reasoning. Document D1, which is considered to represent the most relevant state of the art, discloses a pharmaceutical composition comprising a beta-adrenergic agonist like terbutaline and a bioadhesive carrier like polycarbophil effective in dysmenorrhea or premature labour after local administration in order to avoid adverse side-effects. The subject-matter of claim 23 differs from document D1 in that a different medical indication is claimed, i.e. endometriosis. The problem to be solved by the present invention may therefore be regarded as the provision of a further therapeutic application for a known pharmaceutical composition. Although untreated dysmenorrhea may play a role in the genesis of endometriosis (cf. D1: page 2 line 14-25), the two disorders are not always associated. Moreover, dysmenorrhea and endometriosis are treated in a different way, i.e. pain management versus hormone therapy or surgery. Therefore, it would not be obvious to a skilled person to come to the solution proposed in the present invention. Therefore, the solution proposed in claim 23 of the present application can be considered as involving an inventive step.

V.2.2 The subject-matter of independent claims 24 and 25 is novel in the sense of Article 33(2) PCT. However, claims 24 and 25 cannot be considered as involving an inventive step in the sense of Article 33(3) PCT for the following reasoning. Document D2, which is considered to represent the most relevant state of the art, discloses a pharmaceutical composition comprising the beta-adrenergic agonist terbutaline effective in infertility disorders. The subject-matter of claims 24 and 25 differs from document D2 in that the composition further comprises a bioadhesive carrier. The problem to be solved by the present invention may therefore be regarded as the provision of composition having a superior effect in infertility disorders. A composition comprising a beta-adrenergic agonist like terbutaline and a bioadhesive carrier like polycarbophil has already been disclosed in document D1. The said composition is used for the same purpose as described in the present application, namely local administration to the vaginal mucosa in order to have a controlled and prolonged release and less side-effects due to lower blood levels. Therefore, it would be obvious to a skilled person to select this combination and come to the solution proposed in the present invention. Therefore, the solution proposed in claims 24 and 25 of the present application cannot be considered as involving an inventive step. Dependent claims 26 to 35 do not contain any features which, in combination with the features of any claim to which they refer, meet the requirements of the PCT in respect of inventive step for the same reasoning as stated above for claims 24 and 25.

V.3 Claims 1 to 12 and claims 23 to 35 - Industrial applicability

For the assessment of the present claims 1 to 12 and claims 23 to 35 on the question whether they are industrially applicable, no unified criteria exist in the PCT Contracting States. The patentability can also be dependent upon the formulation of the claims. The EPO, for example, does not recognise as industrially applicable the subject-matter of claims to the use of a compound in medical treatment, but may allow, however, claims to a known compound for first use in medical treatment and the use of such a compound for the manufacture of a medicament for a new medical treatment.
